

SOLDIERS' BATTLE

camp of their own, and every indication at this end of the line points to their obtaining it, very soon. They seem to look on the old-time camps at Harpers Ferry as military heavens where they are to be sent to rest. They are a whole new lot. And, too, they learned the A. B. C. of military life. They learned a great deal about how to live in a camp, how to police it, how to keep it sweet and clean.

Officers Kept Busy.

The tactical problems of the officers have been given develop their sharpness of wit, or whatever faculty is needed to work out the problems, but the belief is expressed that it does not teach a company of enlisted men anything to loaf half a day behind a rifle, or to be a part of the range finders of a battery of artillery. That is what a regiment of guardsmen did yesterday. It was a West Virginia regiment in the Blue army. Their colonel told them that they must take up a position at such and such a place, while he went forward to look the situation over. The battle was on. The West Virginians to a man climbed on that rail fence. They smoked, they ate and they slept and built several bonfires—all this instead of keeping hidden by the natural slope of the hills. The guardsmen did not make a meal of them while they sat there unconscious of anything at all except the rifle balls.

Of course, the camp is lots of fun, and the men are learning to do the right thing, but it is not the thing that algebra before they have mastered arithmetic. The figure used by a brigade staff officer.

Modern Field Hospital.

While the war game was going on and the umpire's decisions were flying thick and fast, moving down men with rifles and bayonets, a modern field hospital, constructed in most ingenious fashion, was put up within a mile and a half of the front of the Blue army.

In the transporting of the enormous amount of baggage necessary to put up the tent, one big tent, which was the operating room, etc., Capt. Fales, Lieut. Hudson, with the District's ambulance company, played a very important part, working side by side with the men of the regular army.

The hospital in transit consists of a long train of pack wagons drawn by good old army mules. Hundreds of boxes contain everything a hospital needs, and, in addition, the hospital is to be easily accessible, they are piled on the wagons and carted along behind the army.

The tents put up yesterday would have held 100 "beds." In reality they had 100 "beds" and the space for the rest was left bare. A thin mattress on a rubber cloth on the ground is what the field hospital people call a bed. This field hospital represented a link in the system of caring for the sick and wounded. It was a traveling temporary thing, and the link in the system of caring for the sick and wounded. It was a traveling temporary thing, and the link in the system of caring for the sick and wounded.

Tent for Operations.

One of the most interesting tents was the operating tent, lighted by gas, which was generated by an acetylene plant carried along with the outfit. Everything necessary was there. Operating table, an array of instruments, sterilizing bowls, a filter of the most approved design, a pump for water and a spraying apparatus to throw water all through the tent and around it to keep the dust down, were among the accessories.

The ambulance company pitched little tents for the patients to sleep in. Within a hundred yards of the operating tent, the ambulances were laid out in rows, and the patients were drawn by mules. They swing along over the roughest roads with the most delicate of instruments.

The men were instructed in matters pertaining to field ambulances in great measure by Maj. Straub of the War College, who has been lecturing to the men in the field.

HURT IN TAXI WRECK

SHAFT FALLS, STICKS IN AS- PHALT AND TIPS CAR.

Wealthy New York Woman Receives Severe Cuts and Other Serious Injuries.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Mrs. Julia Watt Morris-Curtiss, member of the wealthy Morris family, which at one time owned a large portion of the city, was badly hurt yesterday afternoon in a peculiar accident to a taxicab in which she was riding north on 34th avenue.

Her physician, Dr. A. Alfred Lawrence of No. 675 5th avenue, who was with her, was also hurt. Mrs. Curtiss was removed to her apartment in the Hotel Savoy. Her condition, Dr. Lawrence said last night, is serious. The taxicab was in charge of Chauffeur Maurice Shelby of No. 225 East 29th street.

Opposite the Hotel St. Regis a brace supporting the front seat of the taxi became loosened and the front of the car, permitting the shaft attached to the hind axle to drop. The car, as the shaft dropped down, and as the taxicab was going at a good speed the iron rod became imbedded in the soft asphalt and acted as a sort of jack, raising the rear of the vehicle about three feet in the air.

Injured by Glass Window.

Mrs. Curtiss and Dr. Lawrence were both thrown violently against the glass front of the car, the doctor trying vainly to prevent his companion from striking against it. Mrs. Curtiss was badly cut and blood streaming over her face and she was screaming. She also wrenched her leg and back. Dr. Lawrence's back was wrenched.

Before Mrs. Curtiss and the doctor had realized what had happened the broken car had been driven off the street as a jack and the rear of the car dropped back to the pavement, severely jolting its occupants.

From the veranda of the Hotel St. Regis a number of guests witnessed the accident. These at once crowded about the taxicab, offering help. Some of the napkins dipped in water, tried to wipe some of the blood from the dress of Mrs. Curtiss.

Policeman Feimer of traffic squad C offered to get an ambulance, but Dr. Lawrence insisted on having Mrs. Curtiss taken to her rooms at the Savoy. The driver of a passing private car volunteered his services and took her to the Savoy.

Later it was found that she had internal injuries which rendered her condition so serious that Dr. Lawrence called on Dr. Graeme M. Hammond of No. 60 West 59th street.

Woman Has $17,000,000.

Dr. Lawrence suffered severely after the accident from pains in the back, but said he was not seriously hurt. He said that he and Mrs. Curtiss had been driving on business to her lawyers, Kellogg & Ross of No. 115 Broadway.

Mrs. Curtiss inherited about $17,000,000 from Archibald Watt and Mary G. Pinkney, who, with other property, owned the famous Pinkney mansion at 7th avenue and 135th street, one of the landmarks of Harlem.

are about 3,883 fewer unmeted services and about 13,775 more meted services than in 1904-1905. It appears, therefore, that the average unmeted service should waste 250,000 as much as the average meted service, then 13,775 meted services would waste as much as 3,883 unmeted services. In this condition the demand for water during a period of extreme cold weather next winter would be 100,000 more than the demand for water during the cold winter of 1904-1905.

That there is a waste from a meted service in periods of cold weather is evident from the fact that cities having nearly or almost entirely meted service have not experienced the increased demand for water during cold periods although the demand is not as heavy as it would be if all services were unmeted. It is believed that the waste from a meted service is not less than 25-30 per cent of the water from an unmeted service. It is, therefore, the opinion of the officer in charge that all services should be promptly meted to reduce the normal consumption of water so that the danger stated above shall be removed.

Entire Supply Filtered.

"The filtration plant has been in continuous operation throughout the year and the entire water supply of the city has been filtered. The report says that the bacteria have been reduced from an average of 6,820 per cubic centimeter in the McMillan Park reservoir to an average of 143 in the filtered water reservoir. The average turbidity has been similarly reduced from 18 to 1 parts per million. The actual number of bacteria in the water varied from 10 to 100 per cubic centimeter, while the number in the river water ran from 10,000 to 37,000 per cubic centimeter. The actual average reduction by months varied between 90 and 99 per cent.

"The work during the year consisted in cleaning and operating the filters; in analyzing samples of water from the several reservoirs, from each filter, and from taps in various parts of the city; in operating the filters in regular rotation; in station, and in conducting experiments with a view to determining the results of different rates of filtration.

All water flows by day labor. The total quantity of water pumped to the filters during the year was 21,055,440,000 gallons, or an average of 26,940,000 gallons per day. During the year 15,503 cubic yards of sand were washed and 16,870 cubic yards were replaced in the filters.

Few Periods of Excessive Bacteria.

"While the quality of the city filtered water was greater for the greater part of the year," says Capt. Hannum, "there were several periods when the number of bacteria exceeded what is considered by experts to be the proper standard for a filtered water supply. The filtered water was not unclean, but it was not as good as it should be for a considerable percentage of the time. This confirms the experience of the four years' fiscal years, and the judgment of the three experts as expressed in their reports, dated February 18, 1901, to the chairman of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia."

Unlined Section of Aqueduct.

Capt. Hannum says that in the aqueduct there is a total length of 4,334 feet of tunnel through rock which is unlined. He adds that the best engineering practice of the present day requires all tunnel in rock to be lined for use as an aqueduct. In these unlined sections of the Washington aqueduct there are, he says, certain places where the water is disintegrating and falling from the roofs and sides of the tunnels. Such portions of the unlined sections, he says, should be lined for the sake of the stability of the aqueduct and to reduce the danger of the water being played engaged in cleaning or inspecting the aqueduct. An estimate is submitted for the lining of the unlined section of the aqueduct for an emergency fund for use only in case of a serious break in one of the unlined sections. The lining of the plant structures which might endanger or interrupt the water supply.

Minor Repairs Made.

During the past year minor repairs were made to the section of the Conduit road between the Anglers' Clubhouse and Great Falls, and the various culverts and ditches along the entire length of the road were kept in repair. The grade of the road on the north side of Brooke's hill near the Dalecarlia reservoir was reduced from a maximum of 12.6 to 6 per cent, requiring the removal and filling of approximately 2,500 cubic yards of earth and stone. The grade of the road on Dalecarlia hill near the spillway of the reservoir was reduced from a maximum of 11 to 6 per cent, requiring the excavation and placing in of approximately 2,800 cubic yards of earth and stone. Capt. Hannum says that the road was patrolled daily by a special officer from the Division of the District Line to Great Falls.

Prior to August, 1905, the main leading water line from the reservoir was used for a gravity supply to the city. In August, 1905, the gates at the distributing reservoir were closed, and since that date the entire supply has passed through the tunnel to the McMillan reservoir.

By mutual agreement they are now operated and maintained by the city water department.

Park Improvement Suggested.

In order to complete the work of parking McMillan Park just south of the Soldiers' Home grounds, Capt. Hannum says that it will be necessary to cover the area south of the dam with soil, to seed it with grass and set out various kinds of shrubs and trees. The approved plan of improvement contemplates the building of walks and steps from the lower to the high areas, to sod all steep slopes and to build a wading pool. While the
